The Westpac Group completes important step in move to a single ADI

Westpac Banking Corporation (Westpac) today announced that The Westpac Group has completed a further step in Westpac's merger with St.George Bank Limited with receipt of the Federal Treasurer's consent required as part of the process for The Westpac Group to move to a single Authorised Deposit-taking Institution (ADI).

The transition to a single ADI still requires APRA approval and Federal Court approval to deregister the corporate entity St.George Bank Limited. Assuming these approvals are received, the move to a single ADI will take effect on March 1, 2010.

It was a regulatory requirement that The Westpac Group move to a single ADI.

The transition to a single ADI is essentially a change in corporate structure (as St.George Bank Limited is already a wholly owned subsidiary of Westpac) and will not impact the operations of the separate St.George brand and branches. Importantly, the change will have no impact on customers' ordinary day to day interactions with St.George.

By moving to a single ADI:

- Westpac will become the successor in law of St.George Bank Limited;
- All the assets and liabilities of St.George Bank Limited (including in respect of its deposits and contracts) will become the assets and liabilities of Westpac. This also includes all debt securities previously issued by St.George Bank Limited; and
- Separate regulatory and prudential reporting by St.George Bank Limited will cease and be amalgamated in Westpac's reports. This includes regular banking statistics and points of presence information.

Edgar Filing: WESTPAC BANKING CORP - Form 6-K

The Westpac Group will continue to report the performance of the St.George business as part of its regular periodic reporting.
