Vodafone launches V by Vodafone bringing world-leading IoT expertise to consumers

Vodafone today entered the Internet of Things (IoT) consumer market with the launch of V by Vodafone enabling consumers to connect millions of home and leisure electronics products to the Group's dedicated global IoT network - the largest of its kind in the world.

IoT technologies bring Internet-connected network intelligence to a wide range of devices at work, home and on the move. Analyst estimates suggest that by 2020 there will be more than 370 million consumer electronics and smart home devices capable of connection to mobile IoT networks in the countries in which Vodafone operates, up from around 50 million today.*

V by Vodafone is a new, simple system for consumers to connect and manage IoT devices and a product range that includes a connected car dongle, a 4G security camera, a pet location and activity tracker and a bag location tracker.

Vodafone's consumer IoT strategy will build upon the company's extensive track record in developing and implementing enterprise IoT technologies. The Group is the mobile world leader in IoT, with 59 million IoT connections and an international network and services platform for a wide range of business-critical applications.

The new, simple way for consumers to connect IoT devices

V by Vodafone comprises:

- the dedicated IoT V-Sim by Vodafone. The Sim card will be shipped as standard with IoT-enabled consumer electronics products sold by Vodafone from today. V-Sim by Vodafone will be also offered by third-party retailers next year;
- the V by Vodafone smartphone app, providing customers with a single and intuitive overview of all IoT-enabled products registered to their account. Setting up each product is simple: customers scan a

QR code on the product packaging to register it and add the monthly fee to their existing Vodafone mobile account;

- automatic straight-out-of-the-box connection to the international Vodafone IoT network in any of 32 countries. Customers benefit from a straightforward means of managing all of their connected devices from a single interface wherever they are, and wherever they travel. Unlike Wi-Fi-enabled devices, V by Vodafone products are constantly connected wherever there is a mobile signal;
- a single, affordable fixed monthly price plan for each product connected with a V-Sim by Vodafone, making it easy for consumers to use multiple IoT-enabled products; and
- during 2018, Vodafone will launch a new online product marketplace open to IoT developers that will greatly extend the product choice for customers.

The V by Vodafone concept and product range were developed with insights from comprehensive research involving more than 15,000 consumers in Germany, Italy, Spain and the UK.

Launch products

Vodafone has focused on four product categories at launch. Other categories will follow in 2018.

The products will be available for purchase by current Vodafone mobile customers from today in selected Vodafone stores in Germany, Italy, Spain and the UK. They can also be purchased online at v.vodafone.com.

V-Auto by Vodafone uses the same IoT technologies developed by Vodafone for some of the world's most advanced connected cars. The plug and drive dongle can be added to most vehicles on European roads manufactured since 2002. The V-Auto by Vodafone dongle is fitted to the car in seconds by the customer and is fully configured within minutes.

Once connected, V-Auto by Vodafone adds the following capabilities to any compatible vehicle.

- Auto SOS: the car owner will be contacted and offered support in the event of an accident in their home country. An automated call will be made to the emergency services if there is no response. The Auto SOS function provides the kind of eCall capability that will be a mandatory safety feature fitted in all new cars sold in the European Union from 2018, but does so simply and cheaply for millions of older vehicles that would not otherwise benefit from this life-saving technology.
- Find My Car: enabling the car owner to track the whereabouts of their vehicle.
- Safety Score: providing driving performance statistics on every journey. This is ideal for helping younger or inexperienced drivers improve their road sense.

V-Camera by Vodafone is a high-definition mobile security camera that automatically connects to Vodafone's IoT network. This enables customers to set up continuous remote video monitoring of any location where there is 3G or 4G coverage.

V-Pet by Vodafone is a location and activity tracker for dogs and cats. Owners can track their pets using a combination of GPS and the mobile network and get smartphone alerts if their pet strays from a designated area. They can also use the activity monitor to track their pet's movements and sleeping patterns.

V-Bag by Vodafone is an advanced briefcase, handbag and schoolbag tracker that helps customers reduce the risk of theft or loss. Customers can set up a smartphone alert to notify them if a bag leaves a designated area such as a playground or crowded bar.

Vodafone Group Chief Executive, Vittorio Colao, said: The Internet of Things is already beginning to transform how businesses operate. Over the next decade, the expansion of IoT into consumer markets will bring about an equally dramatic shift in how people manage their daily lives, at home and in their leisure time. V by Vodafone makes it simple to connect a wide range of IoT-enabled devices, helping customers keep everyone and everything that matters to them safe and secure. We look forward to applying our world-leading expertise in IoT to help consumers make the most of the next phase of the global digital revolution.

VODAFONE AND CITYFIBRE BRING GIGABIT-SPEED FIBRE TO THE UK

- Strategic partnership to deliver Fibre-to-the-Premises (FTTP) infrastructure to up to 5 million homes and businesses

Vodafone and CityFibre, the UK's largest alternative provider of wholesale fibre network infrastructure, today announced a long-term strategic partnership that will bring ultrafast Gigabit-capable full fibre broadband to up to five million UK homes and businesses by 2025.

Under the wholesale agreement, Vodafone will have a period of exclusive rights (predominantly during the build phase of each city network) to market ultrafast consumer broadband services on the FTTP network to be built, operated and owned by CityFibre. Construction of the first phase of deployment to one million premises is due to start in the first half of 2018 and will be largely complete in 2021. Both parties have the right to extend the commercial terms of this agreement to expand coverage to a further four million homes and businesses by 2025.

FTTP networks use fibre-optic cables for every stage of the connection from the customer's home or workplace to the Internet, providing extremely fast and reliable broadband services capable of Gigabit speeds (1,000 mbps). FTTP broadband connections are vastly superior to outdated networks that rely on old copper telephone lines to connect to the customer's premises, enhancing business productivity and transforming consumers' daily lives.

The Vodafone and CityFibre partnership represents one of the most significant developments in UK telecommunications since the launch of ADSL broadband around 17 years ago. The partnership will help to bridge Britain's fibre gap, bringing world-class Gigabit-capable FTTP connections to households, businesses and public sector sites such as schools, hospitals and GP surgeries, and delivering 50% of the UK Government's target of full fibre to 10 million homes and businesses. Advanced fibre networks are also critical for mobile networks, providing the very high-capacity backhaul connections required for 5G mobile services from the early 2020s onwards.

The agreement provides Vodafone UK with access to a superior product at a lower cost and with better service conditions than the regulated wholesale terms offered by the incumbent operator for access to its legacy copper telephone line broadband network. It is consistent with Vodafone Group's capital-smart fixed infrastructure strategy that aims for an optimal mix of build/strategic partnership/wholesale/buy approaches in fixed broadband. This strategy has positioned Vodafone as the fastest growing broadband provider in Europe, marketing high-speed broadband services to 99 million European homes - a footprint that will be expanded further under this agreement.

Chief Executive of CityFibre Greg Mesch said: This agreement will unlock the UK's full fibre future and is a major step forward in delivering our vision for a Gigabit Britain. With this commitment from Vodafone, we have a partner with whom we can transform the digital capabilities of millions of homes and businesses and establish an unassailable wholesale infrastructure position across 20% of the UK broadband market.

Vodafone UK Chief Executive Nick Jeffery said: Vodafone is already playing the leading role in building the Gigabit Society across Europe by providing customers with high-speed, high-quality broadband. The UK has fallen far behind the rest of the world, trapped by the limited choice available on legacy networks. We look forward to working with CityFibre to build the Gigabit fibre network that the UK needs and deserves.

-ends-

Summary of key terms:

- CityFibre will build, operate and own this new FTTP network, providing wholesale access to Vodafone and other service providers.
- Construction of the first phase of deployment to one million premises is due to start in the first half of 2018 and will be largely complete in 2021. The first towns and cities to benefit from the FTTP rollout will be announced over the coming months.
- Marketing of FTTP services will commence from mid-2018 with the first customers connected towards the end of 2018.
- Vodafone has made a minimum volume-based commitment for 10 years which increases over the period to 20% of the initial one million premises. In turn, Vodafone has been granted a period of exclusivity, city-by-city, for consumer FTTP, predominately during the construction phase.
- The first phase of the agreement encompassing one million homes is estimated by CityFibre to be worth over £500 million over 20 years, assuming that the ten-year 20% minimum volume commitment is maintained throughout the subsequent ten years.
- Both parties have the right to extend these terms to further roll-outs reaching up to four million additional premises by 2025.
