Research Analysts Support Management's Plan Source: FBR, Janney and Stephens analyst research reports " We are buyers of STC as we believe investors are underestimating the amount of heavy lifting the company has done over the last two years, including cost savings triggering much - improved title results/operating leverage . In our view, much of the progress has been clouded by the continuous noise brought on by the declining Mortgage Services segment. The good news at this stage, in our view, is STC has effectively eliminated its past exposure to the troubled default - related offering with Mortgage Services. We think this sets the stage for cleaner quarters with clearer evidence of better core title operating leverage" - Stephens, 3 - May - 2016 " We are incremental buyers of STC following the elimination of its dual class structure... this shift does two key things 1) it helps better align the interests of investors with owners and officers and 2) it clears a past decision hurdle at the Board level. . . but we do view it as added optionality for owning STC.... We believe STC's management team has achieved several important milestones over the last two years, and we believe this team is fully capable (and willing) to take the Company to the next level. " - Stephens, 3 - May - 2016 " Stewart has undergone a significant transformation of its business in the last several years and is now in the position to see improving pretax margins over time ." - FBR, 22 - Apr - 2016 "We believe there are better times that lie ahead as the Company should see improvements in [the Mortgage Services] segment which combined with the ongoing title improvements should translate to a faster (and cleaner) improving leverage/earnings power growth story ." - Stephens, 22 - July - 2016 " STC reported earnings of $0.98/ sh versus our estimate of $0.86 and consensus of $0.94. The beat compared to our estimate was due to better - than - expected margins ." - Janney , 21 - July - 2016
