ITEM 1.01 ENTRY INTO A MATERIAL DEFINITIVE AGREEMENT

On July 11, 2016, American Software, Inc. (the Company) entered into retention agreements with the following executive officers: James C. Edenfield, J. Michael Edenfield, Vincent C. Klings and James R. McGuone.

Each retention agreement provides for compensation to the executive upon the executive's termination following the consummation of a change in control for reasons other than the executive's retirement, death, disability or for cause, or upon the executive's voluntarily termination for good reason. A change in control is generally defined in each retention agreement as a transaction involving a change in ownership or effective control of the Company, a change in the ownership of a substantial portion of the Company's assets and a disposition of a substantial portion of the Company's assets. Cause is defined in each retention agreement as the Company's termination of the executive on the basis of criminal or civil fraud by the executive involving a material amount of the Company's funds or participation by the executive in any act of moral turpitude. Good reason is defined in each retention agreement as, among other things, a material diminution in the executive's position, duties, responsibilities and status, a reduction in the executive's salary, a failure by the Company to continue any benefit plan or incentive plan in which the executive was eligible to participate prior to the change in control, or any action that would adversely affect such executive's participation in such benefit plan or incentive plan, a relocation of the Company's principal executive offices, a material breach by the Company of the terms of the retention agreement and any failure by any successor or assign of the Company to assume the Company's obligations under the retention agreement.

The compensation payable under each retention agreement consists of a lump sum severance payment equal a multiple of the sum of the executive's annual base salary plus the executive's bonus for the prior year as of the date of the change in control.

In addition, following a termination of employment after a change in control, each of Mr. James C. Edenfield, Mr. J. Michael Edenfield, Mr. Klings and Mr. McGuone are entitled to receive health insurance coverage (subject to a COBRA election) and certain other fringe benefits equivalent to those in effect at the date of termination for a period of twenty-four, thirty-six, eighteen, and eighteen months, respectively. Each retention agreement requires the executive to comply with certain covenants that preclude the executive from competing with the Company or soliciting customers or employees of the Company for a period following termination equal to the period for which fringe benefits are continued under the applicable retention agreement. Each retention agreement expires upon the earlier of the executive's termination or three years after a change in control of the Company or any successor to the Company.
