On May 1, 2006, Aviall, Inc. published the following press release:

Boeing to Acquire Aviall for $48 per share

DALLAS, TEXAS May 1, 2006 -- Aviall, Inc. [NYSE: AVL] announced that it has entered into a definitive agreement with The Boeing Company [NYSE: BA] for Boeing's acquisition of Aviall, Inc. for an all cash merger price of $48 per share, or $1.7 billion plus the assumption of approximately $350 million of debt. Aviall will become part of Boeing's Commercial Aviation Services, operating as a wholly owned subsidiary. Aviall's parts ordering and supply chain management capabilities will also be utilized by Boeing's Integrated Defense Systems' Support Systems. ILS, the largest and most comprehensive neutral eMarketplace in the aviation and defense industries, will remain a wholly owned, separately operated unit reporting to Aviall. The completion of the transaction is subject to customary conditions and relevant authorities' approval and is expected to close by the end of the third quarter 2006.

"We are delighted to become part of The Boeing Company," said Paul Fulchino, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Aviall. "Our combined industry knowledge creates a dynamic team that will add to our customers' efficiency, operational savings and profitability. We will now be able to bring our groundbreaking efforts to a much wider aerospace supply chain and thereby expand the number of suppliers whose products can benefit from our high level of customer service and supplier standards resulting in having more of the right parts in the right place at the right time. We are confident Aviall's extensive network of stocking locations, experienced sales team, Internet-based parts quoting and order-entry system, and computerized inventory control systems will continue to exceed our customers' and suppliers' expectations."

"The aviation services market offers us tremendous opportunities to profitably grow our business, internally and externally, to better serve our commercial and military customers," said Boeing Chairman, President and Chief Executive James W. McNerney. "This acquisition is uniquely powerful in that it leverages the strong and growing services units of both our commercial and military businesses. It demonstrates our commitment to create a Boeing that is more than just the sum of its parts," McNerney said.
