VOTE THE WHITE PROXY CARD TODAY

NO MATTER HOW MANY SHARES YOU OWN,
YOUR VOTE IS ESSENTIAL FOR CHANGE AT EQUUS

Dear Equus Shareholder,

With the May 12th Annual Meeting of Equus Total Return (“Equus” or the “Fund”) shareholders rapidly approaching, now is the time for you to cast your vote for a new start at Equus. The so-called “Committee to Enhance Equus” (the “Douglass Committee”) is running a proxy contest to regain control of the Fund so that Sam and Paula Douglass can maintain the status quo and continue to benefit themselves personally at the expense of Equus’ shareholders. If you want change at Equus, it is critical that you vote the enclosed WHITE proxy card today.

No matter how many shares you own, please make sure they are represented at the meeting.
Submit your vote on the attached WHITE proxy card today.

You should consider the backgrounds and experience of the Fund’s director nominees at the end of this letter versus the Douglass Committee and its nominees.

1. SAM DOUGLASS, FOUNDER OF THE “COMMITTEE TO ENHANCE EQUUS” AND THE HUSBAND OF PAULA DOUGLASS, IS CURRENTLY SUBJECT TO A “WELLS NOTICE” FROM THE STAFF OF THE SEC FOR POSSIBLE SECURITIES LAWS VIOLATIONS

In June 2009, Sam Douglass received a “Wells Notice” from the staff of SEC. A Wells Notice is an official communication from the staff of the SEC that it intends to recommend enforcement proceedings be brought for violations of U.S. Federal securities laws. Unlike a confidential fact-finding subpoena where the SEC affirms that no negative inference should be drawn from the inquiry, a Wells Notice is considered a material and disclosable event because the staff of the SEC has conducted an investigation and has concluded that it believes wrongdoing has occurred.

2. THE DOUGLASSES HAVE MADE MILLIONS IN MANAGEMENT FEES, SALARIES, BONUSES, AND INSTALLMENT PAYMENTS IN CONNECTION WITH MANAGING THE FUND DURING THE PAST 5 YEARS

The Douglasses, as founders of Equus, have attempted to disassociate themselves with the Fund’s poor historical performance and their management of Moore, Clayton Capital Advisors, Inc. (“MCCA”), the Fund’s previous investment advisor. The facts, however, tell a different story. During the past 5 years, Sam and Paula Douglass supported MCCA and its relationship with Equus because they stood to personally benefit from its management contract with the Fund:

- MCCA was appointed as the Fund's investment adviser in June 2005 in connection with the sale by Sam Douglass of the Fund's previous investment advisor, Equus Capital Management Company ("ECMC"), to MCCA's parent company.

- Two trusts controlled by Sam Douglass were entitled to receive $6 million from the sale of ECMC, a large portion of which was a continuing earn-out contingent on MCCA remaining as advisor to the Fund.
 - At the time it was sold, ECMC was beneficially owned and controlled by Sam Douglass.
- Mr. and Mrs. Douglass became officers, directors, and employees of MCCA, collectively drawing over $1.6 million in salary and bonus.
- When MCCA's investment management agreement with the Fund was terminated in June 2009, Mr. and Mrs. Douglass were no longer entitled to receive income from MCCA as employees or as installment payments for the purchase of ECMC.

ASK YOURSELF WHY THE DOUGLASSES ARE NOW UNDERTAKING THIS PROXY
CONTEST TO GET CONTROL OF THE FUND'S MANAGEMENT

3. LANCE FUNSTON ALREADY HAS A HISTORY OF LOSING THE FUND'S MONEY

Lance Funston previously managed an investment of the Fund's predecessor (Equus Investments I) that went bankrupt less than two years after the investment. Funston orchestrated a $2.25 million investment by Equus Investments in O'Day Corporation, a sailboat manufacturer in Fall River, Massachusetts. As part of the transaction, Funston's consulting firm L.T. Funston & Co. received approximately $182,179 in fees and expenses and received 15% of the equity. Funston assumed the position of Chairman of O'Day and a monthly fee of $10,000 and, within 11 months from the date the transaction closed, O'Day's net income swung from a gain of $790,000 to a loss of $346,000. Funston even facilitated a $650,000 rescue loan to O'Day in which Equus participated, less than 16 months later even though, according to the O'Day bankruptcy judge:

Notwithstanding the loan, O'Day's financial health [at the time of the rescue loan] was not good. The company's earnings before interest and taxes and net earnings were negative . . .

Six months after the rescue loan (and less than 2 years following the initial investment), O'Day was forced into involuntary bankruptcy – a Chapter 7 liquidation. Despite being charged with and paid for overseeing O'Day, Forbes magazine quoted Funston as saying:

In the course of the two years that we were involved with O'Day, I spent only 20 days at the Fall River facility.

Funston's actions were described in the same article as an example of “[w]hat happens when a buyout artist doesn't understand the business....”

Additionally, Funston served as a director of Regent Bancshares Corp., a once public bank holding company, where he failed to attend at least 75% of the meetings of the Board during at least one year of his tenure despite the bank's being located in his city of residence. Further, while on the Board of Bancshares, Mr. Funston became delinquent on a $705,000 loan from the bank and forced the bank to institute foreclosure procedures against him.

4. THE FUND HAS COMMENCED A LAWSUIT TO RECOVER $2.3 MILLION OWED BY TRULITE, INC. – AND THREE OF TRULITE’S DIRECTORS ARE NOMINEES OF THE DOUGLASS COMMITTEE

Jonathan H. Godshall and John D. White serve as the CEO and Chairman, respectively, of Trulite, Inc., a portfolio company of Equus that is now being sued by Equus to collect on a $2.3 million loan which was originated by Paula Douglass on behalf of the Fund. Each of Messrs. Godshall and White and Paula Douglass are directors of Trulite. Consider the conflicts created and the track record of these persons who have been nominated by the Douglass Committee to the Equus board:

- Instead of pressing for collection and recovery of the Trulite Loan, the Douglasses, through the Douglass Committee, have instead sought to appoint Godshall, White, and Paula Douglass to your Fund’s Board of Directors,
- Godshall, White, and Douglass have a fiduciary duty to protect the assets of Trulite – a direct conflict of interest with the duties of Equus directors to protect the interests of Equus shareholders and collect on the defaulted Trulite loan.
- In early 2007, Trulite commenced trading on the OTC Bulletin Board and on March 31, 2008 had a market capitalization in excess of $14 million. In July 2008, Paula Douglass was appointed to the Board of Trulite. By June 2009, Trulite’s stock price declined and last traded at a penny per share in July 2009 with a market capitalization of approximately $200,000.
- During 2009, Trulite’s net shareholder deficit increased from approximately $2.2 million to approximately $5.0 million.

DO EQUUS SHAREHOLDERS REALLY WANT THE LEGACY OF THE DOUGLASSES AND THEIR FRIENDS TO CONTINUE AS STEWARDS OF THE FUND’S ASSETS?

CONSIDER THE BACKGROUNDS AND TRACK RECORDS OF THE DOUGLASS COMMITTEE AND ITS NOMINEES AND ASK YOURSELF IF RETURNING THE DOUGLASSES TO CONTROL OF THE FUND WOULD BE BENEFICIAL TO ITS SHAREHOLDERS

While the Board is in the process of bringing in new, talented, and experienced directors with no previous connections with Equus or the Douglasses, Sam and Paula Douglass have chosen to launch this costly and disruptive proxy contest, seeking to replace your entire board with their Houston friends and associates. Do not be misled. Please discard any gold proxy card you may receive from the Douglass Committee. The Douglasses' own proxy materials state that Mrs. Douglass intends to seek reimbursement from the Fund for her proxy solicitation expenses, which could total up to $800,000 -- without a vote of the Fund's shareholders. Ask yourself if the Douglass Committee nominees' interests are the same as yours. Support real change by voting the enclosed WHITE proxy card.

THE WHITE PROXY CARD NOMINEES HAVE A PLAN FOR IMPROVING EQUUS' PERFORMANCE AND BUILDING SHAREHOLDER VALUE

The Fund's director nominees – including the four new directors – will focus immediately on:

- Identifying and naming a talented and experienced CEO to lead the Fund forward.
 - Reducing costs and maximizing investments in portfolio companies through active management.
- Effectively communicating fund strategy and growth opportunities to investors to improve the value of Equus' stock, which is currently trading at a deep discount to the value of the Fund's assets.

Mid- to longer-term objectives include:

- Transforming Equus from a small Houston-based fund into a much larger, internationally focused and dynamic investment vehicle.
- Capitalizing on attractive investment opportunities around the world.
- Getting Equus firmly back on the track of receiving regular income and capital appreciation from its portfolio investments.
- Ultimately seeking to resume the Fund's quarterly dividend that was discontinued in early 2009.

Unlike the WHITE proxy card nominees of your Board, the Douglass slate does not have any plan for improving Equus and is riddled with conflicts of interest. In fact, here's what a leading proxy advisory firm has said about the Douglass slate:

“The Dissident [Douglass Committee] does not, to our knowledge, codify a specific plan for the Company [Equus] going forward.”

- Glass Lewis & Co., April 28, 2010 (Bracketed language added)

“With respect to the Dissident's [Douglass Committee's] non-incumbent nominees, Messrs. Godshall and White serve as the vice chairman and chairman, respectively, of Trulite, Inc. (“Trulite”), one of Equus' portfolio companies. Paula Douglass originated a $2.3 million loan to Trulite, on which Trulite defaulted and upon which the Company [Equus] took action to collect on April 23, 2010. We believe these issues raise questions about whether certain of the [Douglass Committee's] non-incumbent nominees may take actions or have interests that are not aligned with, or may, in fact, be inimical to, the interests of shareholders.”

- Glass Lewis & Co., April 28, 2010 (Bracketed language and underline emphasis added)
