Item 8.01 Other Events

In late October 2012, high winds, heavy rainfall and the related flooding associated with Hurricane Sandy caused significant damage to portions of the distribution infrastructure of New Jersey Natural Gas' ("NJNG"), the regulated utility subsidiary of New Jersey Resources Corporation (the "Company"). The magnitude of the flooding is unprecedented. NJNG shut off the natural gas infrastructure that serves the hurricane-damaged barrier islands of New Jersey. Approximately 32,000 of NJNG's approximately 500,000 customers have been affected by this shut off. NJNG is working to minimize the length of time its customers are without service.

The Company anticipates that Hurricane Sandy and its aftermath will influence its financial results, although estimates of the hurricane's effects are not available at this time. For example:

• Operating revenues and utility gross margin are expected to be lower due to extended outages and inability to bill and collect revenues for gas previously delivered to NJNG's customers whose property has been destroyed;

• Capital and other expenditures are expected to be higher due to the restoration, repair and replacement of damaged equipment and assets; and

• Regulatory mechanisms may be modified or created to provide for recovery of restoration costs and lost revenues.

However, NJNG cannot assure that such recovery mechanisms will be available.

While the Company believes it has sufficient liquidity to meet its current obligations and to begin to fund restoration efforts from a combination of cash on hand and available capacity under revolving credit facilities, the Company may need to seek additional financing in order to fully fund restoration efforts.
