Fitch Upgrades PLDT's Local Currency IDR to 'BBB'

Fitch Ratings-Singapore-14 August 2007: Fitch Ratings has today upgraded Philippine Long Distance Telephone Company's (PLDT) Long-term local currency Issuer Default Rating (IDR) to 'BBB' from 'BBB-' (BBB minus). The Outlook is Stable. At the same time, Fitch has affirmed PLDT's Long-term foreign currency IDR of 'BB+' and its National Long-term rating at 'AAA(phil)'. The Outlook is Stable. Also, PLDT's global bonds and senior notes have been affirmed at 'BB+'.

"The upgrade of the local currency IDR recognises the sustained strengthening of PLDT's financial profile through FY06 and H107, with strong positive free cash flow generation enabling significant reductions in both gross and net debt levels, "said Priya Gupta, Director in Fitch's Asia-Pacific telecom, media and technology team. During FY06, the group retired around USD362 million in bank and capital market debt, and achieved additional reductions of USD266m through substantial voluntary conversion of its preferred stock to common equity. PLDT continued to reduce high-cost USD-denominated debt through H107, although this was partially offset by subsidiary Smart Communications' issuance of PHP5.0 billion unsecured fixed-rate notes in February 2007. Overall, key credit metrics have improved significantly; net adjusted leverage fell to 0.6x at H107 from 1.2x at FYE05, while funds from operations (FFO) to gross interest coverage increased to 10.5x from 6.6x over the same period.

The upgrade also reflects the group's sustained strong operating performance and its pre-eminent position in the Philippine telecommunications sector. As at H107, the company had a leading market share of local exchange lines (about 60%) and cellular subscribers (about 57%) and a dominant share of the nascent broadband market (about 76%). PLDT's local exchange customers have been contracting in recent years owing to mobile substitution. On the other hand, the group's cellular customer base has grown strongly through FY06 and H107, with net additions totaling 3.8m and 2.9m respectively in each of these periods. However with penetration of cellular-SIMs (subscriber identification modules) having reached about 55% at H107, Fitch expects subscriber growth to decelerate going forward.

With growth having stalled in the traditional fixed-voice space and the cellular market likely to yield modest growth going forward, PLDT has been focusing on alternate avenues of growth, such as retail broadband and business process outsourcing (BPO). With regard to the former, PLDT is well-positioned to capture a substantial share of demand, owing to its ubiquitous network presence. However Fitch notes that PC penetration is currently quite low in the Philippines, at around 8% of total households in FY06. On the other hand, the group's foray into the information and communications technology (ICT) sector represents a significant shift from its core telecoms operations, and therefore somewhat higher business risk. That said, the Philippines' BPO industry boasts huge growth potential, and successful execution could yield significant upside for PLDT in terms of revenue growth, notwithstanding that margins are substantially lower than in its core telecoms business. Whilst the ICT business is presently a modest contributor to consolidated revenues, it has grown strongly over the last year or so, through a series of moderately-sized acquisitions.

PLDT has lifted its ordinary dividend payout ratio to 70% of net income for FY07, from 60% the previous year. The company expects to pay a total of PHP18.8bn in dividends during H207, which comprises an interim dividend of PHP11.3bn on H107 net income of PHP17.3bn, as well as a special dividend of PHP7.5bn. PLDT has also committed to a look-back approach at the end of 2007, in order to facilitate additional shareholder returns in the event that excess cash is not utilised on business acquisitions.

The Stable Outlook reflects the expectation that PLDT will maintain leading market positions in the telecoms space, with strong cash flow generation helping to maintain or improve its financial profile. However the long-term local currency IDR may be lowered should net adjusted leverage exceed 1.0x, which could be triggered by debt-funded acquisitions/investments, capital management initiatives or a sharp deterioration in the operating environment. In terms of its foreign currency IDR, PLDT remains constrained by the country ceiling of the Republic of the Philippines, which currently is 'BB+'. The National rating of 'AAA(phl)' incorporates all the above factors and is indicative of PLDT's relative credit strength among all Philippine companies.
