Rating Action: Moody's upgrades PLDT bond rating to Baa3

Global Credit Research - 15 Jun 2011

Approximately $550 Million of Debt Securities Affected

Hong Kong, June 15, 2011 -- Moody's Investors Service has today upgraded the foreign currency bond rating of Philippine Long Distance Telephone Company ("PLDT") to Baa3 from Ba1. At the same time the local currency issuer rating has been affirmed at Baa2. The outlook on both ratings is stable.

RATINGS RATIONALE

Today's action follows Moody's decision to upgrade the Republic of Philippines government's Ba3 long-term foreign-currency rating to Ba2 and the foreign-currency country ceiling to Baa3 from Ba1. PLDT's Baa3 foreign currency debt rating remains in line with the Philippines' country ceiling for foreign currency bonds.

The principal methodology used in rating Philippine Long Distance Telephone Company was the Global Telecommunications Industry Methodology, published December 2010.

PLDT, headquartered in Manila and listed on the Philippine Stock Exchange and American Depository Receipts traded on the New York Stock Exchange, is an integrated provider of fixed-line, broadband, cellular and ICT (Information and Communications Technology) services. It currently has a 53% subscriber market share for cellular telephony, 56% for fixed-line services and about 55% for broadband.

REGULATORY DISCLOSURES

Information sources used to prepare the credit rating are the following: parties involved in the ratings, public information, and confidential and proprietary Moody's Investors Service information.

Moody's Investors Service considers the quality of information available on the issuer or obligation satisfactory for the purposes of maintaining a credit rating.

The rating has been disclosed to the rated entity or its designated agents and issued with no amendment resulting from that disclosure.

Moody's adopts all necessary measures so that the information it uses in assigning a credit rating is of sufficient quality and from sources Moody's considers to be reliable including, when appropriate, independent third-party sources. However, Moody's is not an auditor and cannot in every instance independently verify or validate information received in the rating process.

Please see ratings tab on the issuer/entity page on Moodys.com for the last rating action and the rating history.

Strengths:

- Leading market position
- Solid cash flow measures

Rationale

The rating on Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co. (PLDT) reflects the country, macroeconomic, and transfer and convertibility (T&C) risk of the Philippines (foreign currency BB/Stable/B; local currency BB+/Stable/B; ASEAN scale axBBB+/axA-2). The rating also reflects the high price competition in the domestic market with slowing cellular subscriber growth. PLDT's leading position in the domestic market, diversified services, and solid cash flow measures temper these weaknesses. Our BB+ T&C assessment for the Philippines constrains the ratings on PLDT.

Subscriber growth in the Philippine cellular market has slowed, with cellular penetration, including multiple subscriber identity module (SIM) ownership, of more than 90%. We expect that future growth will continue to come from the mass-market segments, particularly from the outskirts of Metro Manila, which have lower average revenue per user.

We therefore believe that the three main players--PLDT, Globe Telecom Inc. (not rated), and Digital Telecommunications Philippines Inc. (Digitel, not rated)--will continue to pursue aggressive pricing and promotions to build market share. Nevertheless, PLDT's plan to acquire Digitel at an estimated US$2.3 billion in enterprise value might somewhat ease competition. The proposed acquisition is subject to regulatory approvals; shareholders have already approved it. Overall, regulatory issues remain a moderate credit risk for the industry.

We expect PLDT to retain its position as the leading integrated telecommunications service provider in the Philippines. As of March 31, 2011, the company had a subscriber base of about 46.7 million in the wireless market, 1.84 million in the fixed-line segment, and 2.1 million in the broadband segment. This resulted in a significant 55% to 60% subscriber market share across all segments. We expect the acquisition of Digitel to further strengthen PLDT's competitive position and broadband growth opportunities. As of May 31, 2011, First Pacific Group (not rated) owned 26% in PLDT while Nippon Telegraph & Telephone Corp. (AA/Stable/A-1+), through its subsidiaries, owned 21%.

PLDT's operating performance deteriorated marginally in 2010 with 2.4% decline in revenue and 150 basis points reduction in its strong EBITDA margins to 61.6%. The weaker operating performance is due to the increasing use of unlimited offers and fixed-rate (bucket) plans, intense price-based competition, multiple SIM card ownership, appreciation of the Philippine peso, and greater use of social networking websites for communication. We expect these market attributes to continue to dampen operating performance. But the effects will be offset by our projections of a moderate Philippine economic growth of 5.0%-5.5% annually over the next three years and increasing demand for broadband.

Exhibit 2

The proposed acquisition of Digitel could help improve PLDT's operating and capital expenditure efficiency. Nevertheless, we expect the benefit to be limited considering that Digitel is significantly smaller than PLDT and has lower operating margins.

PLDT's cash flow protection measures remain strong, with strong positive free operating cash flow (FOCF) of more than Philippine Peso (PHP) 40 billion a year. In addition, the ratio of funds from operations (FFO) to adjusted debt is more than 60%, and adjusted debt to EBITDA has been less than 1.5x for at least the past five years.

We expect PLDT's financial metrics to remain strong although FOCF is likely to decline after factoring an increase in projected capital expenditure to about PHP34.4 billion in 2011. We also do not expect the proposed acquisition to have a significant negative impact on the company's financial metrics because the acquisition is largely equity funded. Nevertheless, PLDT has an aggressive capital structure with the ratio of adjusted debt to capital of more than 50%.

Liquidity

We believe PLDT has adequate liquidity. We expect the company's sources of liquidity to exceed its uses by about 1.2x in 2011. We anticipate that PLDT's net liquidity sources will remain positive even if EBITDA declines by 20%. The company also has significant headroom in its covenants.

As of December 31, 2010, PLDT's liquidity sources include cash and short-term investments of PHP37 billion, of which we believe the company needs PHP15 billion for regular operations. The sources also include our projected funds from operations of about PHP70 billion in 2011 and unused credit facilities of about PHP20 billion. PLDT's unused facilities mainly comprise short-term facilities that we expect the company to be able to rollover given its strong banking relations. Uses of liquidity include capital expenditure of about PHP34 billion, debt maturities of about PHP14 billion, equipment payables of about PHP21 billion, and projected dividend of about PHP27 billion.

PLDT's foreign currency risk exposure is moderate, in our view. As of Dec. 31, 2010, 45% of the company's total consolidated debt is foreign currency-denominated, of which about 25% was unhedged. Interest rate risk is manageable because about three-fourth of PLDT's debt is based on fixed rates.

Outlook

The stable outlook on the rating on PLDT reflects the stable outlook on the sovereign rating. It also reflects our expectation that PLDT's operating performance will be stable and the company will generate positive free cash flows in the next two years at least.

We could raise the foreign currency rating on PLDT only after we raise the BB+ T&C risk assessment for the Philippines. We could downgrade the company if:

- Any lowering of the rating on the sovereign prompts a lowering of the T&C risk assessment or a deterioration in country risk factors;

The company's financial risk profile deteriorates, including ratio of debt to EBITDA above 2.0x, on a sustainable basis due to its shareholders' return initiatives, such as dividend payout, share buyback, or investments; or

- PLDT expands into sectors that are exposed to the uncertain operating and regulatory environment in the Philippines.
