Matsushita Announces Specific Plans Regarding

New CRT Joint Venture with Toshiba

-New Company to be formed by integrating CRT businesses

of both companies through business divisions-

Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., Ltd. (NYSE and PCX symbol : MC) announced that the company has decided at its board of directors meeting held today to integrate its cathode ray tube (CRT) business into Matsushita Toshiba Picture Display Co., Ltd. (New Company), which will be jointly established with Toshiba Corporation (Toshiba), effective April 1, 2003. In January 2003, MT Picture Display Co., Ltd. (Preparatory Company) was established by Matsushita and Toshiba for the purpose of making necessary preparations to integrate the CRT businesses of the two companies into the New Company. As part of such preparations, on March 20, 2003, Matsushita will first divide and transfer its CRT business to the Preparatory Company. Following such division and transfer, Matsushita's CRT business, together with the CRT business that Toshiba will subsequently divide and transfer to the Preparatory Company, will be integrated into the New Company, effective April 1, 2003.

The basic terms of the business division and subsequent integration are outlined as follows:

1. Objective of business integration

The objective of the business division and integration is to establish a highly-profitable CRT business structure. This will be accomplished by consolidating both companies' strengths in R&D, manufacturing and sales, thereby achieving efficient management and competitive CRT business operations on a global scale. The New Company will be the third largest TV-use CRT operation in the world. Although the CRT market is somewhat mature, annual growth of between two and three percent (based on units) is forecasted, due to brightness, color and cost performance advantages that the CRT format maintains over plasma display panels and liquid crystal displays.

The advent of digital broadcasting will heighten the necessity to improve the image quality of display devices. The New Company will differentiate itself through cutting edge technology that provides high-quality images by combining Matsushita's Super Slot Tension mask technology, which helps form uniformly high-quality images and is ideal for large-sized flat screen picture tubes for digital TV receivers, and Toshiba's Microfilter technology, which increases brightness and contrast in CRTs.

The New Company also brings together the product development capabilities and manufacturing technologies of Matsushita and Toshiba to maintain a competitive position in the global CRT market by sharing and standardizing design methods and manufacturing processes.

Matsushita and Toshiba will integrate domestic and overseas CRT business operations in the areas of R&D, manufacturing and sales, with the exception of manufacturing operations in Japan.

2. Outline of business division

A. Schedule

January 29, 2003	Board resolution to approve business division Signing of business division agreement
March 20, 2003 (planned)	Date of business division and transfer
March 31, 2003 (planned)	Date of business division and transfer (Toshiba)
April 1, 2003 (planned)	New Company inaugurated upon name change of Preparatory Company

B. Method of business division and transfer

1) Method

Matsushita will divide a certain part of its business and the Preparatory Company (the succeeding company) will succeed the divided business.

2) Reason for adopting this method

This method was chosen because it was determined to be the most efficient means by which to transfer the relevant businesses.

Table of Contents

-3-

C. Allotment of shares

1) Share allotment ratios

Upon the business division and transfer by Matsushita, the succeeding company will issue 120,271 new shares of common stock, and allot such shares to Matsushita. Furthermore, upon completion of procedures related to business integration, Matsushita and Toshiba will hold 64.5% and 35.5% shares in the New Company, respectively.

(For the purpose of Matsushita's consolidated financial reporting, which conforms to U.S. GAAP, the equity method will be applied for the New Company. Although the New Company will be autonomously responsible for managing its business, important management decisions will be made upon agreement between Matsushita and Toshiba.)

2) Calculation method for share allotment ratios

Matsushita and Toshiba consulted their respective outside financial advisors, separately, regarding the assessment of the overall value of businesses involved in the integration of CRT businesses. Based on such assessment, both companies held negotiations, whereupon Matsushita calculated the number of shares to be allotted to it by the succeeding company in consideration of the value of its CRT business to be divided, as well as the value of assets held, and the number of shares issued, by the succeeding company.

D. Cash distribution upon business division and transfer

There will be no cash distribution in relation to the business division and transfer.

E. Rights and obligations to be succeeded

Assets, liabilities, rights and obligations involved in the business to be divided and transferred, which are considered to be mandatory for the succeeding company to operate the business to be succeeded.

F. Prospects of paying debt obligations

Edgar Filing: MATSUSHITA ELECTRIC INDUSTRIAL CO LTD - Form 6-K

Matsushita believes that both Matsushita and the succeeding company can pay the debt obligations to be incurred as a result of the business division and transfer.
