U.S. GOVERNMENT CLEARS THE WAY FOR SAGE ACQUISITION

Transaction Moves Forward As Waiting Period Expires

SAN JOSE, CALIF. (Nov. 20, 2001) - Genesis Microchip (Nasdaq: GNSS), a leading designer of integrated circuits for flat-panel displays, today announced a key barrier has been removed in Genesis's planned acquisition of Sage, Inc. (Nasdaq: SAGI).

As of late Monday night, the waiting period under the U.S. government's Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976 expired. Expiration of the waiting period ends the U.S. Department of Justice's antitrust review of the transaction.

We are pleased the U.S. government has allowed this transaction to proceed, said Amnon Fisher, Genesis Microchip's President and CEO. We believe the acquisition of Sage will enhance our product portfolio to better meet the needs of our customers. It should also accelerate our growth in consumer video ICs by capitalizing on Sage's technological capabilities and the Faroudja brand name.

The combined company will create a technology leader with a strong history of innovation and a broad portfolio of products serving the fast-growing display semiconductor industry.

Under the terms of the previously announced agreement, Genesis will issue 0.571 shares for each outstanding Sage share. Following the acquisition, former Sage share and option holders will own approximately 28 percent of the combined company on a fully diluted basis. In conjunction with the transaction, Genesis will change its legal domicile to the United States, which should ensure the transaction to be tax-free for U.S. federal income tax purposes.

Genesis and Sage have achieved most of the major steps required towards a successful merger as planned; however, the transaction is still subject to shareholder approvals, the completion of Genesis' s change of its legal domicile to the United States and customary closing conditions, and is expected to close in early calendar 2002.

This news release contains forward-looking statements within the meaning of the Federal securities laws, including statements about the timing of closing, the enhancement of the product portfolio, growth rate of consumer video IC market and the technology leadership position of the combined company. The forward-looking statements are subject to risks and uncertainties that could cause actual results to differ materially from those projected as a result of a number of factors, including the possibility that the transaction may not close or that the companies may be required to modify aspects of the transaction to achieve regulatory approval, the possibility that the combined company may fail to introduce new products on a timely basis, the possibility that the combined company may fail to secure or retain design wins with customers, the possibility that the actual growth rate of the display IC market may differ from the parties' projections, and changes in general economic conditions. Other factors that may cause actual results to differ materially include those set forth in the reports that each company files with the Securities and Exchange Commission, including, but not limited to, each company' s report on Form 10-K for the fiscal year ended March 31, 2001.
