

Item 8.01 Other Events.

Hurricane Harvey made landfall near Corpus Christi, Texas on Friday, August 25, 2017, as a Category 4 hurricane and has also impacted the Houston area as a Tropical Storm with significant rain and flooding. This storm is ongoing and is expected to continue for the next few days, moving into Louisiana. Federated National Insurance Company (“Federated National”) writes homeowners insurance in both Texas and Louisiana and writes private passenger automobile insurance in Texas. Federated National also writes flood insurance through the National Flood Insurance Program (“NFIP”) under which the NFIP assumes 100% of the flood risk.

Based on current information available, we anticipate that Federated National will have total losses of approximately $4 million, net of recoveries including reinsurance, for all product lines in connection with this storm.

Monarch National Insurance Company currently does not write business outside the state of Florida, and therefore does not have exposure to this ongoing weather event.
