Gilat Provides Koochi Communications Ltd. with 300 Skystar 360E VSAT Sites for its Broadband Customers in Nigeria

Company to release second quarter earnings report on August 5, 2004

Petah Tikva, Israel, July 26, 2004 Gilat Satellite Networks Ltd. (Nasdaq: GILTF), a worldwide leader in satellite networking technology, announced today that it shall supply to Koochi Communications Ltd. an additional 300 Skystar 360E terminals to deliver broadband communications to SOHO and SME users in Nigeria and West Africa. A rollout of 50 terminals was completed in Q4 of 2003, with shipment of the additional 300 terminals currently in process.

Gilat also announced that it will release its second quarter 2004 results on August 5, 2004.

Koochi Communications Ltd. is a satellite network provider, offering access, deployment and maintenance of satellite solutions to Africa's service providers. Koochi's purchase of a Gilat satellite network based solution will enable the company to deliver an efficient broadband alternative to its customers. Koochi will provide its satellite network via a shared Hub facility based in Fuchstadt Germany. Janna Korestkaya, Associate Vice President Sales, Africa, said, "Providing access to Broadband services to SOHO and SME customers in Africa is challenging, but also achievable. This is being demonstrated by entrepreneurs such as Koochi who are actively taking steps using VSAT technology to convert what most people see as only a dream into reality. Koochi's rollout of Gilat's Skystar 360E VSAT is based on flexible tariff structures and a proven market strategy. End users have world class service and applications access based on our proven technology and the Koochi drive to make a difference.

According to Koochi Communication's CEO, Mr. Kelly N. Kanu, "the selection of Gilat's Skystar 360E reflects Koochi's belief in adopting best-of-breed communications solutions, which maintain a consistently proven resilience to our market environment. Our technical appraisal of the Skystar 360E performance is sincere, as it comes ultimately affirmed by those who inspire us - our clients. This is in many ways, reflective of a business relationship enhanced through affordable pricing & support from Gilat. We have expressed through our procurement & rollout of the 360E terminals, a conservative representation of our capacity to deliver - as an energetic company with a strong spirited partner in Gilat, the necessary combined momentum to impart on the West African landscape the benefits of lessened barriers to broadband internet connectivity, and the overall promotion of Information Communication Technology (ICT) development.

About Koochi Communications Ltd.

Koochi is a Virtual Satellite Network Provider, providing Satellite terminal equipment, broadband access and a broad range of voice, data/fax and voiceover telephony services created to suit a broad spectrum of client needs across West Africa. Koochi is also prided as an ICT business & service activist group, set up with the aim of challenging the traditional service models in the Information and Communications technology market in West Africa. Koochi's pricing structure is highly scalable; as its network service needs can be scaled according to customer's requirements with very competitive incremental costs. This is especially important to the regions rapidly growing SME and business sectors of these economies.
