RADICAL PRICING CHANGES MAKE BT

UP TO 20 TIMES CHEAPER THAN MAIN RIVALS

BT is challenging its fixed-line competitors head-on by offering customers

Edgar Filing: BT GROUP PLC - Form 6-K

national evening and weekend calls up to 20 times cheaper than its major rivals.

The huge savings are part of a radical new pricing structure for the successful BT Together scheme which sees the end of per-minute charging for all evening and weekend calls and makes distance irrelevant, with one rate for UK and local calls.

This means BT Together customers will pay just 6p for up to an hour on all evening and weekend calls made to anywhere in the UK. If the number is one nominated under the Friends and Family scheme, the cost of the call will be reduced by an extra 10 per cent.

Customers switching from rivals Telewest will save money every time they pick up the phone, while savings will be made against the current rates of ntl and One.Tel on all national calls lasting more than a minute. Thirty-minute and one-hour national evening calls with One.Tel cost 78p and GBP1.53, compared with just 6p under BT Together. And a single 10-minute national evening call using Car Phone Warehouse costs 13 pence more.

Angus Porter, managing director of BT Retail's consumer division said: "We are determined to be competitive and build on our position as the consumer champion in fixed-line telephony. We have kept our market share constant for the past two years in the face of increasing competition. This radical move provides the simplicity and lower charges that will give customers stronger reasons than ever to choose BT over any other company in the market.

"Claims by some competitors of savings over BT are often just plain misleading, as they are based on comparisons with our standard rate, which is only for customers for whom it would not be economic to be on a fixed call package. Today's changes make it simpler for many customers to spot the real deal.

"Our offer of 6p for all evening and weekend calls up to an hour virtually removes the need to compare our prices with other operators. What you see is what you get, with no need to think about any other items like call connection charges. Just consider that Telewest charges the same amount to connect a call as BT Together customers will pay for an hour. And the cost of a good gossip, say half-an-hour's chat with friends or relatives in another part of the UK at the weekend, will be substantially cheaper with BT Together. With BT, that chat will cost 6p, while British Gas will charge 45p, Carphone Warehouse, 57p, and the Post Office, GBP1.08."

The existing BT Together options have been streamlined to give the company's 10 million existing customers three simple-to-understand options - each geared to their level of phone use:

- Option 1, the 6p hour plan - customers will pay a flat rate of 6p for up to an hour on all evening and weekend local and national calls. Daytime calls will be charged at 3p a minute, a 25 per cent saving on the previous price for national calls;
- Option 2, the evening and weekend plan, offers the first hour for free on all evening and weekend local and national calls. The charges for daytime calls will be the same as for Option 1;
- Option 3, the anytime plan, offers the first hour free on all UK calls at any time of day.

Each of the three options will have a fixed monthly fee that reflects the level of usage. Option 1 will cost GBP11.50 a month; Option 2, GBP17.50 and Option 3, GBP28.50.

The new options, which are to be introduced on June 1, are a direct response to over a million BT customers who replied to the UK's biggest-ever survey of customer opinion, which revealed a strong desire for lower, less-complicated call charges and greater certainty over their phone bills.

Porter added: "We believe these three new options represent excellent value-for-money and will not only be popular with our existing customers but will attract large numbers of new customers to BT."

Editors Notes:

BT Together's three new options: call rates will now depend on when you use your phone, and not on where you are calling:

	Monthly fee incl. rental of one line and VAT, with Direct Debit or Monthly Payment Plan (otherwise GBP1 more)	Daytime call rate 8am-6pm	Evenings and Weekend rate 6pm-8am Evening Weekend (incl. VA
Option 1	GBP11.50	3p per minute	6p
The 6p hour plan		(5p minimum charge)	for up to an hour *
Option 2	GBP17.50	3p per minute	No charge
The Evening and Weekend plan		(5p minimum charge)	for up to an hour *
Option 3	GBP28.50	No charge	No charge
The anytime plan		for up to an hour per call	for up to an hour *

* Every minute over an hour for evening and weekend calls will be charged at 1p per minute.

 Every minute over an hour for daytime calls under Option 3 will be charged at 3p per minute.

Customers can redial as often as they like.

The tables below show how costs compare for five minute, 30 minute and just under one hour calls. As these tables show, none of the selected competitors can beat BT Option 1 over all three call-duration periods.

BT IN BROADBAND BREAKTHROUGH

- ADSL broadband to be brought within reach of 90 per cent of UK homes
- Wholesale prices to be cut
- Support for more public sector partnerships to accelerate demand

BT today announced great news for Broadband Britain with radical plans to bring mass market broadband within reach of 90 per cent of UK homes. These plans are based on technological breakthroughs and cost saving initiatives. The company also revealed that wholesale prices will be cut from May 1.

In addition, BT said that public sector demand could be aligned to help accelerate the roll out of broadband. This will help local campaign groups in their efforts to bring broadband to their communities.

Providing a major update on the company's broadband strategy, BT chief executive Ben Verwaayen said that BT was well on track to hit its target of one million ADSL connections by the summer, having recently passed the 800,000 mark. He said the speed of this progress is generating economies of scale that will help BT continue to reduce costs and progress beyond the one million figure.

Technological Breakthroughs

He also announced that BT had made a series of technological breakthroughs that would, for the first time, bring ADSL within potential reach of 90 per cent of UK homes and small businesses. This represents a major advance from the current enabled footprint of 67 per cent.

The new initiatives mean that about 600 additional exchanges can now have trigger levels set taking potential coverage to 90 per cent. These represent the level of demand needed to make it commercially sensible for BT to take the risk of upgrading an exchange with ADSL. Within a week BT will announce trigger levels for the next 200 or so exchanges that, if enabled together with those exchanges that have existing trigger levels, would take coverage up to 85 per cent. The remainder will be announced by early summer.

Central to the setting of the new triggers is a technological development that enables exchanges to be linked together so that the costs of connecting them to the core BT network are reduced. This is one of several developments that will lead to cost savings and help BT set the new trigger levels.

This is in addition to BT extending the reach of ADSL broadband up to 6kms from the exchange. This separate development means that up to 98 per cent of people connected to an ADSL enabled exchange will be able to access the technology. This means close to 600,000 additional people will be able to access broadband from June.

BT chief executive Ben Verwaayen said: "Today's announcements mark a major milestone in the creation of Broadband Britain. BT has managed to overcome the challenge of bringing affordable broadband within reach of 90 per cent of UK homes and I am sure the news will be welcomed across the UK."

Prices slashed

He also revealed that BT would boost the market even further by cutting the wholesale price of broadband from May 1. This is possible due to factors including reduced cost of equipment and network efficiencies. The monthly fee for the wholesale consumer product will be reduced by up to GBP2 and there will be even larger savings on BT's wholesale products that are aimed at service providers who serve small businesses. Prices for the 500kbs, 1Mbs and 2Mbs products will be slashed by over 50 per cent.

Mr Verwaayen said: "These price cuts will benefit everyone from service providers to consumers and businesses and will ensure that the UK continues to have some of the lowest prices in Europe."

Public sector action

BT said that the purchasing power of the public sector could drive demand even faster. This would reinforce BT's efforts to accelerate take up and roll out within the 90 per cent footprint and help get beyond it.

In particular, BT said that government plans to enable schools and GP's surgeries with broadband would benefit the whole community if implemented in a way that helps reduce trigger levels in non-enabled exchanges. This would speed up the roll out of ADSL and bring the benefits of broadband to a far wider audience than just the public sector. It would also be in alignment with the government's over-riding objective of having the most extensive and competitive mass market for broadband in the G7.

Mr Verwaayen added: "The challenge ahead is to ensure that exchanges hit their trigger levels as quickly as possible. The registration scheme has been a runaway success with more than 300,000 expressions of interest and it will be boosted significantly as the government starts to bring broadband to every school and GP's surgery."

BT also highlighted the success of public private partnerships. Several of these have been developed - notably in Cornwall and Scotland - and the impact has shown how successful they can be in driving take-up. BT hopes that further partnerships can be replicated widely.

Other technologies

One scheme where such support could work is BT's Exchange Activate programme. This innovative scheme - to bring broadband to smaller exchanges - will be launched this summer following successful trials. It will be useful in extending availability to the UK's smallest communities.

BT also stressed that, as well as launching Exchange Activate, the company was working hard to develop other solutions to bring mass market broadband to every part of the UK. Options being explored include satellite, mesh radio and other forms of wireless broadband.

Mr Verwaayen concluded by saying: "2003 could be a seminal year in the drive to achieve Broadband Britain but only if the whole industry pulls together with the support of the government. Such an approach would benefit consumers, businesses and the UK itself."

Notes To Editors

BT Wholesale has notified several price changes that will come into effect from May 1, 2003. Among these are reductions in the monthly rental fees for its IPStream Home 500 and IPStream Office range of products (listed below). There will also be a discount scheme. Connection charges for IPStream end users will remain unchanged.
