Hanson PLC statement in response to the California Attorney General's complaint regarding San Francisco Bay sand dredging royalties

The Attorney General for the State of California has filed a complaint in the San Francisco Superior Court regarding additional royalty payments that he claims are due to the California State Lands Commission ("SLC") in connection with sand dredging operations in the San Francisco Bay carried out by Hanson subsidiaries acquired in 1999.

The complaint contends that the Hanson subsidiaries ("Hanson") and their predecessor companies wrongfully calculated royalties due to the SLC on various leases under which they dredge sand from the San Francisco Bay and failed to pay the SLC for other sand dredged in the Bay.

Hanson will defend itself against the complaint filed by the Attorney General. Hanson's interpretation of the terms of its leases in the San Francisco Bay, and the calculation of the associated royalties, was confirmed by the SLC following its audit of Hanson's royalty payments in 2001. Hanson will also contend that the Attorney General is adopting a stance that is inconsistent with standard mineral royalty procedures. Consequently, Hanson does not believe that there are adequate grounds to support the allegations made, or the amount of damages being sought, by the Attorney General.

California is an important market for the Hanson group and it believes that it is fulfilling its obligations to the State of California. The group aims to be a good corporate citizen wherever it operates.

Notes

In July 1999, Hanson acquired the sand mining businesses of Tidewater Sand and Gravel, Inc., and its affiliate Moe Sand Co. ("Tidewater"). In December 1999, Hanson acquired the businesses of Olin Jones Sand Co. and its affiliate Jones Sand Co. ("Jones").

Tidewater was privately owned and headquartered in Oakland, California. Tidewater has served the San Francisco Bay Area construction industry with high-quality construction grade aggregates since the mid-1950's. The company was one of the larger Bay Area construction materials suppliers.

Jones was also a sand mining business and it supplied the Bay Area construction industry from two distribution sites at Martinez and Antioch, California.

In 2002 these operations dredged approximately 2 million tons of aggregates from the San Francisco Bay.
