Nomura becomes First Lead Corporate Sponsor of the Program on Alternative Investments at Columbia Business School

Nomura Holdings, Inc. (the Company) announced today that the Company has decided to support the Program on Alternative Investments at Columbia Business School's Center on Japanese Economy and Business (the Program).

The Company has made a three-year financial commitment of US $300,000 as a lead corporate sponsor to the Program.

The Program was established in July 2002 to analyse the development of hedge funds, private equity and other alternative asset classes in Japan and the broader East Asian region. Given the Program's initial success, the Center on Japanese Economy and Business has underway as its next phase a three-year program to expand and deepen its activities both at Columbia Business School in New York and in Tokyo.

The Program conducts an extensive series of activities to improve understanding of this growing set of asset classes. The Program currently is undertaking five research projects, examining the development of Japan-focused hedge funds, private equity (buyouts), distressed investing, commercial real estate alternatives and the evolving strategies of Japanese institutional investors in alternative assets.
