GERBER SCIENTIFIC SELLS STEREO OPTICAL COMPANY TO ESSILOR

Gerber to Use Proceeds to Reduce Debt

SOUTH WINDSOR, CT - Gerber Scientific, Inc. (NYSE: GRB) today announced that it has completed the sale of Stereo Optical Company to Essilor International S.A. Stereo Optical, a wholly owned subsidiary of Gerber Coburn Optical, Inc. based in Chicago, IL, develops, manufactures and distributes vision screening equipment. Terms of the transaction were not disclosed.

Edgar Filing: GERBER SCIENTIFIC INC - Form 8-K

"Our strategic review of Gerber Coburn's operations determined that Stereo Optical was not fundamental to our long-term development," said Marc T. Giles, President and Chief Executive Officer of Gerber Scientific, Inc. "We are pleased, however, that the business has been acquired by Essilor who already participates in the vision screening market. The proceeds from the sale will be applied to the reduction of Gerber Scientific debt," Giles added.

Gerber Coburn Optical, the world leader in ophthalmic lens processing systems, will continue to be focused on developing, manufacturing and distributing a wide range of fully integrated, computer-based laboratory production solutions to the ophthalmic market around the world said John Hancock, President of Gerber Coburn.
