DEAR SHAREHOLDERS:

It is our pleasure on behalf of the Board of Directors to present the Semi-Annual Report for The Japan Equity Fund, Inc. (the "Fund") for the six months ended April 30, 2003.

BACKGROUND

The objective of the Fund is to outperform over the long-term, on a total return basis (including appreciation and dividends), the Tokyo Stock Price Index ("TOPIX"). Stock selection in Japan is facilitated by the use of a value screen applied to all stocks listed on the First and Second Sections of the Tokyo Stock Exchange ("TSE"), the over-the-counter market in Japan and listed on other stock exchanges in Japan. The way in which the Fund seeks to meet its objective is to identify under-valued stocks by examining certain fundamental characteristics of stocks which are listed on the exchanges listed above. These fundamental characteristics include, among others, the earnings-to-price ratio and the book-to-price ratio. This method of stock selection results in a master list of 300 stocks (from a universe of 3,300 stocks) from which stocks are selected for the Fund in accordance with predetermined sector and size parameters.

MARKET REVIEW (NOVEMBER 2002 - APRIL 2003)

During the six months ended April 30, 2003 the TOPIX declined by -7.62%. The main points in reviewing the market during this period were as follows:

- November 02: The Nikkei 225 Index ("Nikkei 225") rebounded by 6.7%, recovering to the 9,000 level on November 28, 2002, while the TOPIX closed 3.5% higher. Early in the month, the market fell, dragged by some major banks and debt overhanging companies. However, toward the month end, the market regained lost ground because: (1) fears for an immediate nationalization of major banks retreated; (2) the U.S. stock market remained steady; and (3) foreign investors, who had sold Japanese stocks since June 2002, turned into net buyers later in the month.
- December 02: The Nikkei 225 declined 6.9% to 8,578.95, while the TOPIX closed 5.5% lower at 843.29. The Nikkei 225 fell for nine straight days, the longest such losing streak in eleven years, while the TOPIX hit an 18-year low on December 16, 2002. Though there was no specific negative news on the fundamentals, profit-taking after a sharp rise in late November as well as selling pressure from individual investors dampened the market.
- January 03: The Nikkei 225 declined 2.8% to 8339.94, while the TOPIX closed 2.6% lower at 821.18. Early in the month, massive foreign investor buying sent the market upward. However, the direction reversed thereafter due to: (1) the increase in selling pressure from financial institutions and corporate pension funds; and (2) the growing tension regarding a military conflict with Iraq, together with the weakness in the U.S. stock market.
- February 03: Geopolitical risks (Iraq and North Korea) and the share liquidation by financial institutions forced the market to stay in a bottom area after testing the strong resistance of the Nikkei 225, at a level of 8800. February and the early part of March is a seasonal weak period even in the 1980's bull market years, due to institutional liquidation toward the fiscal year end. Geopolitical risks and plummeting bank shares made this seasonal weakness even more painful for this period.

- March 03: The fall in share prices accelerated in March, on the back of sales to unwind cross shareholdings in the run-up to the closing of full-year accounts. Further, sales related to the return of the government portion of employee pension funds, and also the increasing lack of buyers due to the uncertainty over the Iraq situation, contributed with the market falling to new post-bubble lows. Although there was a rebound in share prices across the globe once the war in Iraq began, the upturn in Japan was muted due to the financial instability that had been triggered by the fall in share prices, as well as concerns over North Korea. During March, the average trading volume on the First Section of the TSE was 830 million shares, with an average trading value of ¥570 billion.
- April 03: April saw investors increasingly focus on low to mid-priced stocks as they avoided international blue chips, which were particularly affected by the return of the subrogated portion of employee pension funds to the government and also the U.S. economy, where the war in Iraq led to increasing uncertainty. Buyers continued to shy away, not only because of the lacking sense of urgency in government policy, nor the deterioration in supply/demand conditions caused by the return of the subrogated portion of pension funds, but also because investors took a wait-and-see attitude to corporate earnings announcements. As a result, the market remained on a downward trend, hitting new post-bubble lows toward the end of the month. During April, the average daily trading volume on the First Section of the TSE was 950 million shares, with an average trading value of ¥590 billion.

Toward the end of the month of April, expectations of government intervention to support stock prices declined, after Prime Minister Junichiro Koizumi stated his adherence to the path of structural reform, leading prices down to a new post-bubble low at one point. However, not only did factors that had deteriorated the supply/demand situation, such as the return of the government portion of pension funds, come to an end, and companies such as Canon and Nissan posted favorable earnings results, but there were also rises in U.S. markets. As a result, there were buy-backs of international blue chips and high-priced issues. There was also the buying of Softbank and other IT-related stocks, and the short-term trading in small and mid-cap issues also continued, where there were little concerns over supply/ demand. Nevertheless, Sony's announcement on April 24, that it projected falling sales and profits for fiscal year 2003, shook investor confidence in corporate earnings, bringing leading issues down. The market hit new post-bubble lows on April 25, 26, and 28. Bank stocks continued to be weak on the back of the severe earnings environment.

PERFORMANCE SUMMARY

As shown in Table 1, the net asset value ("NAV") of the Fund decreased by -7.49% in USD terms during the six months from November 1, 2002 to April 30, 2003. Over the same period, the benchmark TOPIX lost -5.15 in USD terms.

Our attribution analysis in JPY base (Table 2) indicates that the underperformance as much as -2.23% (-9.85% vs. -7.62%) during the period can be attributed to the negative effects from stock selection (-2.58%). On the other hand, sector selection showed a positive contribution (0.29%).

STOCK SELECTION

The attribution analysis indicates that stocks held in Finance (-1.00%) and Personal Consumption (-0.70%) highly contributed to the negative performance.

SECTOR SELECTION

The attribution analysis also shows that our underweight stance in Finance (7.91% vs. 12.44%) (0.60%) and overweight in Machinery (6.06% vs. 3.31%) (0.16%) had a positive effect on the performance.

BACKGROUND OF NEGATIVE STOCK SELECTION EFFECT

We would contend that the negative contribution result from stock selection was brought about by a strong outperformance of small-sized and lower quality/illiquid stocks, with higher credit-risks that are basically excluded from our investment universe. Stock prices have recently moved due to supply/demand reasons, ignoring fundamentals and valuations.

We believe that the extension of TOPIX passive management by public pensions and the partial return of the pension management to the government (DAIKO HENJO) are having a relatively negative impact on large caps and a positive one on under-held small caps--especially illiquid ones.

We sense that not just the "daiko henjo" effect but also speculation has returned to a low quality small-cap universe. The main reason for this in our view is that at the end of last year the second-tier types of stocks were trading at low valuations, which is why they are currently rebounding so strongly.

We suspect that the outperformance of the "weakest" would stop once they are again valued in terms of price-earnings-ratio (PER), in line with the broader market. They have lower liquidity, return-on-equity (RoE), margins, and balance sheet quality than the average of the market and thus should rationally trade at a PER discount, in our perspective. While it is hard to predict the exact timing of the reversing of the current trend, we believe that fundamentals and valuations should reassert themselves sooner or later.

OUTLOOK & STRATEGY

The Japanese equity market failed to participate in the global equity market rally driven by the quick resolution to the war in Iraq and hope for a U.S. economic recovery. Together with SARS-affected markets such as Hong Kong and Taiwan, the Japanese market competed for the bottom in April performance. Underperformance of the Japanese stock market is essentially attributed to the following two factors:

- (1) Extra selling pressure associated with 'DAIKO HENJO'. Corporate liquidation of Japanese shares for daiko henjo is estimated to have reached Y1-2 trillion so far this year, which created selling pressure on institutional favorites including international blue chips such as Toyota and Takeda Chemical. Speculators took advantage of this situation by shorting these stocks in the last couple of months.
- (2) Continued weakness of bank shares. Bank financing of Y2 trillion including Y1 convertible preferred shares issued by Mizuho in March continued to pull down common share prices, as buyers of these Mizuho preferred shares, corporations, might have been selling their holdings of common shares. The conversion ratio of Mizuho preferred shares should be decided by late June. The lower Mizuho share price declines, the more shares convertible preferred buyers can get. The outcome of the Financial Service Agency ("FSA") special inspection was announced in late April, which required additional credit costs of Y1.3 trillion. Bank shares continued to plummet in April, reflecting more technical factors rather than fundamentals such as a banking crisis.

Mid and small-cap stocks performed well, while large-cap stocks sank to new lows due to the fear of DAIKO HENJO liquidation. A reverse two-tier market persisted so far this year. General market sentiment has not been so bad as the Nikkei 225 indicated. In April, the TSE Second Section and OTC indices recorded new highs this year, while the Nikkei 225 sank to a new low. We are seeing the market of stocks rather than the actual stock market.

We think the market represented by the Nikkei 225, TOPIX and Morgan Stanley Capital International (MSCI) Japan Index with strong large-cap influence will hit a bottom in the current quarter, although we do not have strong conviction that the market hit the historic bottom (not a bottom) in April, due to lack of capitulation with huge volume. There are a few reasons to be optimistic:

- (1) Geopolitical risks have been reduced by the relatively quick resolution of the war in Iraq. Although the North Korean problem remains unresolved, the issue has less significance in the global economic outlook with no fear of energy supply. SARS is having an impact on regional economies. Although reaction and countermeasures taken by the governments, businesses and people might have further negative impact on regional economies in the short term, the epidemic will eventually be contained.
- (2) DAIKO HENJO liquidation with further potential selling of Y2-3 trillion will peak in the current quarter. Stock market support measures such as deregulation on corporate share buy-backs and easy use of the share purchase organization are now under discussion. Corporations are now announcing share buy-back plans, which will be implemented after shareholders' meetings in June. Corporations have abundant cash flow.
- (3) With exception of Sony, corporate earnings announcements and guidance by major companies were in line or slightly better than expected, although bottom line earnings were affected by huge losses from mark-to-market evaluation of share holdings. Unless we see a double dip in the global economy led by the U.S., positive earnings growth for the year ending March 2004 will be achieved. However, the driver of profit growth will continue to be cost cutting and restructuring rather

Due to fear of pension fund liquidation, large-cap stocks seem to be oversold and we have started to see more values in large-cap stocks rather than mid and small-cap stocks. Thus, we intend to maintain our overweight in large-cap value stocks with high beta. By sectors, we maintain a rather neutral stance at this point with modest underweight in defensive sectors such as pharmaceuticals and utilities and substantial underweight in bank stocks.

FUND PERFORMANCE

As of April 30, 2003, the Fund's net assets were approximately $45.5 million, which represents a NAV of $4.20 per share. The return on the Fund's net assets was -7.49% since the Fund's fiscal year ended on October 31, 2002. Over the same period, the benchmark TOPIX return was -5.15%, as measured in U.S. Dollars.

The change in NAV in U.S. Dollars depends on several factors such as: (1) the percentage change in the benchmark during the period; (2) the over- or under-performance of the Fund's portfolio, after expenses, relative to the benchmark; and (3) the change in the Japanese Yen/U.S. Dollar exchange rate.

Our investment strategy is to invest in undervalued securities based on intensive bottom-up analysis supported by quantitative screening. In our research efforts, we place a priority on evaluation of the top management, and its commitment to enhance shareholders' value through clear-cut strategies, including restructuring, that will be eventually reflected in share prices. We add value primarily through a bottom-up stock selection approach for the fundamental Japan equity product.

It is important to emphasize again that it has not been an objective of the Fund to predict changes in its benchmark. Rather, its goal is to outperform the benchmark, while staying fully invested. Specifically, the goal is to hold no more than 5% in cash. On April 30, 2003, the proportion of the Fund's net assets invested in Japanese equities listed on the First Section of the TSE was 98.46%, while short-term investments and other net assets represented 1.54%.

The invested position of the Fund's assets consisted of common stocks of companies operating in 27 different industries. The Fund had relatively large weightings in Electric Appliances (17.81% of net assets), Transportation Equipment (10.39%) and Communication (7.93%).

During the six months ended April 30, 2003, the Fund's market price on the New York Stock Exchange ("NYSE") ranged from a low of $4.02 per share on March 11, 2003 to a high of $4.98 on December 2, 2002. The Fund's NYSE market price closed at $4.45 per share on April 30, 2003.

The NYSE trading price in relation to the Fund's NAV per share, as measured by the weekly closing prices during the six months ended April 30, 2003 ranged from a discount of 6.71% on December 19, 2002 to a premium of 4.81% on April 17, 2003, and ended the period at a premium of 5.95%.

The Fund has not invested in derivative securities. Although foreign currency hedging is permitted by the Fund's prospectus, the Fund has not engaged in any foreign currency hedging.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

ORGANIZATION AND SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

The Japan Equity Fund, Inc. (the "Fund") was incorporated in Maryland on July 12, 1990 under its former name "The Japan Emerging Equity Fund, Inc." and commenced operations on July 24, 1992. It is registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission as a closed-end, diversified management investment company.

The following significant accounting policies are in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles in the United States of America for investment companies. Such policies are consistently followed by the Fund in the preparation of its financial statements. The preparation of financial statements in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. Actual reporting results could differ from those estimates.

VALUATION OF INVESTMENTS--Securities which are listed on the Tokyo Stock Exchange or listed on the over-the-counter market in Japan or listed on other exchanges in Japan and for which market quotations are readily available are valued at the last reported sales price available to the Fund at the close of business on the day the securities are being valued or, lacking any such sales, at the last available bid price. In instances where quotations are not readily available or where the price as determined by the above procedures is deemed not to represent fair market value, fair value will be determined in such manner as the Board of Directors (the "Board") may prescribe. Short-term investments having a maturity of 60 days or less are valued at amortized cost, except where the Board determines that such valuation does not represent the fair value of the investment. All other securities and assets are valued at fair value as determined in good faith by, or under the direction of, the Board.

FOREIGN CURRENCY TRANSLATION--The books and records of the Fund are maintained in U.S. dollars as follows: (1) the foreign currency market value of investment securities and other assets and liabilities stated in Japanese yen are translated at the exchange rates prevailing at the end of the period; and (2) purchases, sales, income and expenses are translated at the rate of exchange prevailing on the respective dates of such transactions. The resulting exchange gains and losses are included in the Statement of Operations. The Fund does not isolate the effect of fluctuations in foreign exchange rates from the effect of fluctuations in the market price of securities.

TAX STATUS--The Fund intends to continue to distribute substantially all of its taxable income and to comply with the minimum distribution and other requirements of the Internal Revenue Code applicable to regulated investment companies. Accordingly, no provision for federal income or excise taxes is required.

The Fund is not subject to any Japanese income, capital gains or other taxes except for withholding taxes on certain income, generally imposed at rates of 10% on interest and 15% on dividends, paid to the Fund by Japanese corporations.

INVESTMENT TRANSACTIONS AND INVESTMENT INCOME--Investment transactions are recorded on the trade date (the date upon which the order to buy or sell is executed). Realized and unrealized gains and losses from security and foreign currency transactions are calculated on the identified cost basis. Dividend income and corporate actions are recorded generally on the ex-date, except for certain dividends and corporate actions from Japanese securities which may be recorded after the ex-date, as soon as the Fund acquires information regarding such dividends or corporate actions. Interest income is recorded on an accrual basis.

DIVIDENDS AND DISTRIBUTIONS TO SHAREHOLDERS--The Fund records dividends and distributions payable to its shareholders on the ex-dividend date. The amount of dividends and distributions from net investment income and net realized capital gains are determined in accordance with federal income tax regulations, which may differ from generally accepted accounting principles. These book basis/tax basis differences are either considered temporary or permanent in nature. To the extent these differences are permanent in nature, such amounts are reclassified within the capital accounts based on their federal tax basis treatment; temporary differences do not require reclassifications. Dividends and distributions which exceed net investment income and net realized capital gains for tax purposes are reported as distributions of paid-in-capital.
