CryptoLogic unveils Instant Click and signs licensing deal with Tain

New online content solution offers rapid deployment from the Company's full suite of egames on third party platforms

July 19, 2010 (Dublin, IRELAND) – CryptoLogic Limited, a global developer of branded online betting games and Internet casino software, announces the launch of a new gaming package, Instant Click, which has been licensed to Tain AB (Tain), a leading European provider of e-gaming technology infrastructure licensed in Malta.

Instant Click is the latest innovation from CryptoLogic that enables rapid deployment of a range of titles from its complete suite of more than 300 online games, by online operators and technology providers on their own e-gaming infrastructure and electronic cashier systems. As a result, CryptoLogic's Instant Click package can now be integrated and made available to players in just a few weeks.

Tain, whose e-gaming platform is used by more than a dozen prominent online operators, is the first company to license Instant Click, for an initial three years. CryptoLogic will derive a share of wagering revenues generated by its games, in line with its existing business model.

Christer Fahlstedt, Tain CEO, said: "Instant Click is a technology platform provider's dream. It enables CryptoLogic's highly sought-after games to be rolled out swiftly to the online player community by leveraging operators' existing infrastructure at little additional cost. As a result we are hugely excited to introduce this product to our customer base."

Brian Hadfield, President and CEO of CryptoLogic, said: "Instant Click has been designed in response to market need and is a solution for online operators who want CryptoLogic's innovative gaming content but do not require its full hosting casino platform. Its launch not only boosts CryptoLogic's addressable market but also complements our branded games licensing strategy. For the first time in the Company's history we now have a range of products that suits the needs of most operators worldwide and enables them to differentiate themselves with the adoption of our proven content."
