Southeastern Asset Management Comments
On Dell's Proposed Go-Private Transaction

MEMPHIS, Tenn., September 9, 2013 – Southeastern Asset Management today issued the following statement regarding the Dell Inc. (NASDAQ: DELL) proposed go-private transaction:

We are grateful for the strong support we received from our fellow Dell stockholders throughout this process as we fought diligently on their behalf. Indeed, prior to the Special Committee's decision to change the voting standard the Michael Dell/Silver Lake transaction did not receive the required stockholder approval on three separate occasions. While we continue to oppose the Michael Dell/Silver Lake freeze-out transaction, given the new record date, the new stockholder base, the modified voting standard and the Board's refusal to combine the Annual Meeting and Special Meeting, Southeastern and Icahn will not pursue additional efforts to defeat the transaction. Though we continue to believe that our proposal is superior to the Michael Dell/Silver Lake transaction, we are pleased that our efforts contributed to the modest increase in merger consideration Dell stockholders will receive.

Southeastern strongly believes that by agreeing to the revised Michael Dell/Silver Lake proposal and trading away what was perhaps the most important "unwaivable" stockholder protection included in the merger agreement, the Dell Special Committee did a disservice to stockholders. We continue to believe that the Michael Dell/Silver Lake transaction significantly undervalues the company and its prospects and denies stockholders the opportunity to participate in Dell's significant upside potential.
