Such statements include, without limitations, any statements containing the words believe, anticipate, estimate, expect, intend, plan, seek, and similar expressions. These forward-looking statements involve a number of risks and uncertainties that could cause Allied's actual results to differ materially from those suggested by the forward-looking statements and are beyond the Company's ability to control or predict.

With respect to the Company's Chapter 11 reorganization process, these risks include, but are not limited to, the following: the Company's ability to continue as a going concern and fund its cash requirements through the effective date of a plan of reorganization; the ability of the Company to confirm and consummate the plan of reorganization (or an alternative plan), which depends on a number of factors, including the Company's ability to obtain the necessary approval of its plan of reorganization, the Company's ability to satisfy the conditions under the New DIP Facility necessary for exit financing, and the bankruptcy court's confirmation of the plan of reorganization; the ability of the Company to operate under the terms of the New DIP Facility; sufficient cash availability for the Company to meet its working capital needs; the Company's ability to obtain amendments to its collective bargaining agreement with its employees in the U.S. represented by the U.S. Teamsters on substantially the terms set forth in the Company's plan of reorganization and the related disclosure statement; labor disputes involving the Company and its employees; risks associated with third parties seeking and obtaining court approval to modify or terminate the automatic stay, appoint a Chapter 11 trustee or to convert the cases to Chapter 7 cases; the Company's ability to maintain contracts that are critical to its operations; and the ability of the Company to retain key executives and employees.

In addition the Company faces a number of risks with respect to its continuing business operations, including, but not limited to: the highly competitive nature of the automotive distribution industry; dependence on the automotive industry and ongoing initiatives of customers to reduce costs; loss or reduction of revenues generated by the Company's major customers or the loss of any such customers; the variability of OEM production and seasonality of the automotive distribution industry; the Company's highly leveraged financial position; the Company's ability to obtain financing in the future; the Company's ability to fund future capital requirements; increased costs, capital expenditure requirements and other consequences of the Company's aging fleet of Rigs as well as Rig purchasing cycles; dependence on key personnel; and the availability of qualified drivers.
