This Amendment No.1 to Schedule 13D (this “Amendment”) amends the below-indicated items from the Schedule 13D with respect to the shares of common stock (the “Common Stock”) of Rosetta Stone Inc., (“RST” or the “Company”) previously filed by or on behalf of the Reporting Persons (as defined below), as previously amended (collectively, the “Schedule 13D”), by supplementing such Items with the information below.

The names of the persons filing this Amendment (collectively, the “Reporting Persons”) are: The D3 Family Fund, L.P. (the “Family Fund”), The D3 Family Bulldog Fund, L.P. (the “Bulldog Fund”), The D3 Family Canadian Fund, L.P. (the “Canadian Fund”), The DIII Offshore Fund, L.P. (the “Offshore Fund”), Nierenberg Investment Management Company, Inc. (“NIMCO”), Nierenberg Investment Management Offshore, Inc. (“NIMO”) and David Nierenberg (“Mr. Nierenberg”).

Item 4. Purpose of Transaction

Item 4 is hereby amended to add the following:

We are amending our 13D to reflect our August 7, 2014 conversation with Rosetta Stone’s (RST) management. In that conversation, reflecting on the market’s negative reaction to RST’s August 5 earnings announcement, we advised management that “time is not your friend.” (This is consistent with what we said in our original 13D: “RST’s current share price reflects investor concern that the company is a wasting asset... [W]e urge [management] to move quickly and decisively...”)

Management’s response to our advice was to ask us what we would recommend that they do. We made four near term suggestions, consistent with our original 13D, and we add one longer term suggestion here:

1. In our original 13D (filed on June 6, 2014) we wrote that “RST... needs to communicate... in a much simpler and more compelling manner to the investment community.” Unfortunately, while RST met its bookings and EBITDA guidance for the June, 2014 quarter, financial reporting services wrote that RST seriously missed the Street consensus numbers for revenues and EPS. Decent execution in the June quarter was reported as a major miss and the stock traded down. Therefore our first suggestion to management on August 7 was that RST should anticipate and avoid all confusion caused by purchase accounting-driven differences between deferred revenue, bookings, and realized revenue, by communicating more pro-actively with analysts.
2. In our original 13D we “urge[d] management to identify the single most important thing it can do to maximize [North American consumer] NAC cash flow.” Second quarter NAC contribution fell 35% versus the same quarter in 2013. Management’s principal solution to extend and maximize NAC’s cash flow is to sell more than one RST product to each customer, thereby amortizing selling and marketing cost over higher revenue. It hopes to do this by persuading adult language learning customers to add brain fitness and children’s products to their shopping cart. This sound logical. But so far RST has not provided the investment community with proof that bundling will happen or that it will improve NAC cash flow. Therefore on August 7 we advised RST management that it should aggressively and intelligently reduce corporate and NAC costs to strengthen cash flow. Cost is entirely within management’s control; product bundling initiatives, which we hope will succeed, are unproven. We suggested that RST “hedge” its bundling bet with cost reduction.

3. In our original 13D we urged RST management to “accelerate the growth of... RST’s... [software as a service Enterprise and Education] (SAAS E&E) business.” E&E contracted 4% (pro forma) in the first quarter; grew 2% in the second; and management forecast growth would accelerate to 5-6% in the third quarter and “10% plus” in the fourth. Our third suggestion to management on August 7 was that they identify and execute the best ways to further accelerate E&E’s growth in 2015 and beyond. CEO Steve Swad has told the investment community several times that financial and strategic buyers would value E&E at a multiple of its revenues. This is because the buyers value the recurring revenue of SAAS business and because they appreciate growth. All other things being equal, faster growth should drive higher value. This is why in our original 13D we urged RST management, while protecting NAC’s cash flow, to concentrate their time and RST’s resources on accelerating E&E’s growth.
4. In our original 13D we wrote that “[t]he composition of RST’s board should evolve into a “post-venture” board.” On August 7 we advised RST management that “time is not your friend.” We want to raise the level of urgency at RST about the changes which we believe are needed to transform the company. Therefore on August 7 we suggested to RST management that it and RST’s board should work with several of RST’s largest investors to identify at least two mutually acceptable investor representatives to join RST’s board as soon as possible. We hope that these representatives will bring two needed attributes: a more intense sense of urgency about taking action to improve NAC/corporate cash flow and accelerate the growth of E&E, and digital marketing expertise.

In addition to these four near term suggestions, we offer a longer term suggestion, based on our desire for RST to sharpen and simplify its corporate focus. Both the quality of management’s execution and the quality of investors’ enthusiasm and understanding of RST should benefit from tighter corporate focus. To that end, once NAC has been stabilized and its cash flow optimized, we believe that RST should determine whether both NAC and E&E should remain under the same corporate umbrella. It may maximize shareholder value to separate them, so that each piece of the company ultimately might wind up with appropriate owners. Cash cow owners and growth owners usually are not the same.
