Item 5.02. Departure of Directors or Certain Officers; Election of Directors; Appointment of Certain Officers; Compensatory Arrangements of Certain Officers.

Upon the recommendation of the Compensation and Management Succession Committee, the Board of Directors of Protective Life Corporation (Protective) has decided to convert the accrued benefit (the Accrued Excess Benefit) payable under the Excess Benefit Plan (the Excess Plan) as of March 31, 2016 to John D. Johns, Protective s Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, into a lump sum amount. The lump sum amount will be allocated to a book entry account that will be treated as though it were a Pay Deferral Account under Protective s Deferred Compensation Plan for Officers (the Deferred Compensation Plan).

The purpose of this action is to establish Protective s liability with respect to Mr. Johns benefits under the Excess Plan and to eliminate the possibility that the amount payable in respect of such accrued benefit could change significantly during the period that Mr. Johns remains in the service of Protective or its affiliates. This change will not alter the time at which or form in which the Accrued Excess Benefit will be payable to Mr. Johns. Mr. Johns has consented to this treatment of his vested accrued rights under the Excess Plan.

Under the terms of the Excess Plan, Mr. Johns accrued benefit would be payable to him in a lump sum amount in the January following the date of his retirement from Protective. This lump sum amount would be determined using the mortality tables applicable under Protective s qualified defined benefit pension plan, in which the majority of Protective s employees participate (the Pension Plan), and an interest rate (the Applicable Interest Rate) equal to the lesser of (A) the sum of (1) the yield on U.S. 10-year Treasury Notes at constant maturity as most recently published by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York plus (2) 0.75%, and (B) the interest rate used for determining lump sum payment amounts under the Pension Plan as of the date on which the calculation is being made. However, to satisfy applicable provisions of Section 409A of the Internal Revenue Code, the portion of such benefit attributable to services after 2004 would not be payable to Mr. Johns until after his separation from service with Protective and its affiliates. Thus, payment and calculation of the majority of his accrued benefit could be delayed, and delaying such calculation could change the amount ultimately payable, to the extent that Mr. Johns remains in the service of Protective or any such affiliate.

To avoid this possibility, the amount of the Accrued Excess Benefit has been determined under the otherwise applicable terms of the Excess Plan, subject to the following assumptions and modifications. The amount of the Accrued Excess Benefit has been calculated as if Mr. Johns retired on March 31, 2016 by applying the mortality tables and the Applicable Interest Rate prevailing at that date, resulting in an Accrued Excess Benefit of $ 14,198,013.

Mr. Johns will continue to accrue benefits under the Excess Plan with respect to his continued service as an employee of Protective after March 31, 2016. At the end of each calendar year (or the date Mr. Johns' employment terminates, if earlier), the additional benefit accrued during such year (or portion thereof) will be converted into its then present value, using the mortality tables and Applicable Interest Rate on such date and credited to Mr. Johns' retirement Pay Deferral Account.

Treating the Accrued Excess Benefit as a Pay Deferral Account under the Deferred Compensation Plan will allow the amount of such benefit to be treated in the same manner as if it were payable currently to Mr. Johns and then deferred under the Deferred Compensation Plan. This will allow the Accrued Excess Benefit to be deemed invested, at Mr. John's election, among the various notional investment opportunities available to participants (including Mr. Johns) for their deferred compensation under the Deferred Compensation Plan until it is payable to Mr. Johns.
