18. Any other matters that need to be specified: None

UMC acquires SiS subsidiary company SMC

1. Kind of merger/acquisition (e.g. merger, consolidation, spin-off, acquisition, or receiving assignment of shares): merger

2. Date of occurrence of the event: 2004/02/26

3. Names of companies participating in the merger (e.g. name of the other company participating in the merger or consolidation, newly established company in a spin-off, acquired company, or company whose shares are taken assignment of): SiS Microelectronics Corporation

4. Counterparty (e.g. name of the other company participating in the merger or consolidation, company taking assignment of the spin-off, or counter party to the acquisition or assignment of shares): Silicon Integrated Systems Corp.

5. Relationship between the counter party and the Company (investee company in which the Company has re-invested and has shareholding of XX%), and explanation of the reasons for the decision to acquire, or take assignment of the shares of, an affiliated enterprise or related person, and whether it will affect shareholders' equity: Investee company under equity method and which the Company has shareholding of 16.18%, none.

6. Purpose/objective of the merger/acquisition: Improved economic conditions are the major driving force behind this merger. The current recovery in the semiconductor industry began to accelerate in the second half of 2003, and has caused capacity utilization rate at UMC to rise dramatically. By the end of 2003, capacity utilization reached 100%, making it impossible for UMC to meet all of the requirements of its global customer base. In view of the long-lead time it takes to build a new fab, well in excess of one year, and costs that would likely exceed one billion US dollars, UMC concluded that a merger with SMC is the most effective method to quickly meet customer demand, relieve production bottlenecks, and maximize growth in response to the strong recovery in industry conditions. The merger allows UMC to accelerate capacity expansion and achieve improved economies of scale, as well as avoid the massive capital outlay that construction of a new fab would require. With this merger, UMC will recognize revenues and profits from the operations of SMC's fab, thereby achieving greater financial transparency.

7. Anticipated benefits of the merger/acquisition: After the merger, the company will add a 8-inch fab, and monthly production will increase by 24,000 wafers. As the semiconductor climate improves, the merger will help the company to improve its operation performance and profits.

8. Effect of the merger or consolidation on net worth per share and earnings per share: After the merger, the market share will increase, resource will be effectively consolidated, and production cost will be reduced. Thus, the merger will have a positive impact to net worth and earnings per share.

9. Share exchange ratio and basis of its calculation: Exchange ratio is tentatively set at 2.24 shares of SiS Microelectronics Corp for 1 share of UMC. Basis of calculation are the company values, current operations, technology, and future prospects of the companies.

10. Scheduled timetable for consummation: The merger process will be completed by July 2004.

11. Matters related to assumption by the existing company or new company of rights and obligations of the extinguished (or spun-off) company: SiS Microelectronics Corp. assets and liabilities on its book on the merger date will be fully assumed by UMC.

12. Basic information of companies participating in the merger:

UMCi Moves to Full Scale Production

1. Date of occurrence of the event: 2004/03/02

2. Cause of occurrence:

Singapore, March 2, 2004 UMCi, the Singapore-based 300mm subsidiary of world-leading semiconductor foundry UMC (NYSE: UMC), today announced the start of full-scale production following the successful fabrication of advanced ICs for three separate customers. UMCi, Singapore's first 300mm foundry, has already demonstrated good wafer yields for these leading edge copper interconnect-based chips and is moving them to volume production. The products include chips for the FPGA and wireless communication sectors.

Chris Chi, president of UMCi, said, "Our decision to establish UMCi in Singapore has paid off with this noteworthy milestone. Simply put, we have succeeded in bringing the world's most advanced IC foundry facility to full-scale production. Our customers will soon realize the tremendous productivity advantages that our state-of-the-art 300mm fab promises to deliver.

UMCi installed its back-end-of-line (BEOL) copper equipment in January of 2003, and shortly afterwards, backend copper processing of 300mm wafers signified the start of pilot production. The front-end-of-line (FEOL) equipment installation was completed at the end of 2003. Today's milestone marks UMCi's transition to full production.

The UMCi facility is a second-generation 300mm fab that utilizes the industry's most advanced automation systems and equipment to maximize production efficiency. In addition, UMCi incorporates state-of-the-art single wafer processing, which offers greatly reduced cycle times and increased flexibility over traditional batch processing.

UMCi has leveraged the experience and knowledge from UMC's Fab 12A, which has been in production since 2001, to achieve the favorable wafer yields realized at this very early stage of production. UMC's two 300mm fabs firmly position UMC as the clear industry leader for 300mm manufacturing.
