3. Reasons for revision

(Consolidation)

- (1) Management right of W.J. Kubota Development Corporation, a subsidiary of the Company, will be transferred to Misawa Resort Co., Ltd. and RISA Partners Inc. on August 1, 2004.
- (2) Consequently, the Company reverses a part of the loss (mainly impairment loss) related to W.J. Kubota Development Corporation, which is the difference between the loss recognized in prior years and the loss concluded by the transfer, and this reversal leads to an increase of income before income taxes by ¥5.0 billion.
- (3) In addition, the loss related to W.J. Kubota Development Corporation becomes tax deductible by the transfer, which was not tax deductible at recognition. The effect of the loss becoming tax deductible is \(\frac{\pmathbf{x}}{7.0}\) billion out of \(\frac{\pmathbf{x}}{10.0}\) billion increase in net income. The remaining of \(\frac{\pmathbf{x}}{3.0}\) billion increase in net income is brought after deduction of taxes from the increase of \(\frac{\pmathbf{x}}{5.0}\) billion in income before income taxes.

(Non-consolidation)

- (1) The revision of non-consolidated financial forecast is caused by the same incident as consolidated basis. However, in terms of amount, the impact is much less significant than consolidated-basis because in the case of non-consolidated basis, the taxes related to the loss recognized in connection with W.J. Kubota Development Corporation were deductible at recognition in prior years.
- (2) The difference between the extraordinary loss recognized in prior years and actual loss resulting from this business transfer is ¥5.0 billion, and net income increases by ¥3.0 billion after deduction of taxes.
