Robert Cubbin:

Good afternoon, everyone, and thank you for joining me on such short notice. By now, you've likely seen the news that following thorough review of strategic alternatives, we have signed a definitive agreement to be merged into Fosun International. I hope you have received my note and had a chance to read the press release. This is an exciting day for Meadowbrook, and I wanted to take a few minutes to highlight what this means for our company, and what you can expect in the weeks and months to come. First and foremost, all of you should be extremely proud of what we have achieved. Fosun's interest in our company is a reflection of the hard work each of you has put into our efforts to strengthen our business and serve the needs of our partners—customers and policy holders. For those of you who might not be familiar with Fosun, they're an investment group, with global operations and a strong presence in insurance internationally. As we have gotten to know them throughout this process, Fosun has emphasized their goal of expanding their core insurance business, and has been very clear about how Meadowbrook will play a key role in those efforts. The acquisition of Meadowbrook marks their entry into the U.S., and will enable Fosun to establish a significant presence in the U.S. property casualty market. As to what this means for Meadowbrook, this transaction enables us to continue to build upon the progress we have made over the last year in strengthening our business, improving our capital position, returning to profitability and continuing to anticipate and support the evolving needs of our customers, partners and agents. As part of Fosun, we will have access to additional financial resources and operational expertise to help us meet our long-term goals. Furthermore, we believe this transaction will enhance our ability to serve our partners, customers and policy holders, and will create new opportunities for employees as part of a larger global organization. Simply put, we are confident we have found an excellent partner in Fosun. Fosun has informed us that following the closing of our transaction, which is expected in the second half of 2015, they intend to maintain our operational headquarters in Southfield, Michigan, and we will continue to operate under the Meadowbrook name. In the coming weeks, you will learn more about Fosun, and I'm sure you, too, will recognize the respect they have for who we are and what we can do. As we move forward, there are a few things to keep in mind. It is important to understand that today's announcement is just the first step in the process. The transaction is subject to approval by our shareholders, as well as regulatory approvals and the satisfaction of other closing conditions. And importantly, until it is completed, we will continue to operate as an independent company. That means it is business as usual, and we must maintain focus on our day-to-day responsibilities and continue to provide our partners, customers and policy holders with the high level of service they have come to expect. I know many of you will have questions as we move forward, and I can assure you we will do our best to keep you informed as we move through the process. You should expect to hear more just after the first of the year. Please also keep in mind that this news may attract interest from external parties. If you are contacted by the media, shareholders, investors, analysts or other outside parties, please direct the inquiries to Mike Costello, Karen Spaun or me. We are very excited about this combination and the many opportunities ahead of us. As always, thank you for your hard work and commitment to Meadowbrook. Please have a happy and healthy new year.
