APPALOOSA COMMENTS ON ISS QUALIFIED RECOMMENDATION

Without Immediate Change, Status Quo Could Remain in Place for Years

NEW YORK – April 15, 2019 – Appaloosa LP today issued the following statement in response to Institutional Shareholder Services Inc.’s (“ISS”), qualified recommendation regarding Appaloosa’s proposal to separate Allergan Plc’s Chairman and CEO roles.

“Allergan’s Board deserves no deference as the incumbent directors have presided over a failed strategic review, a questionable business strategy and excessive compensation packages, and have exhibited a disregard for sound corporate governance practices. ISS’s recommendation to forestall a separation of Allergan’s Chairman and CEO roles represents a misunderstanding of the reasons for the company’s underperformance, is inconsistent with its support last year for a similar proposal and is baffling. Although ISS’s qualified recommendation recognizes significant ‘ongoing concerns for shareholders’ exist, WITHOUT IMMEDIATE CHANGE TO ALLERGAN’S LEADERSHIP STRUCTURE, THE STATUS QUO COULD REMAIN IN PLACE FOR MANY YEARS. We urge shareholders to vote for our proposal to separate the Chairman and CEO roles to drive shareholder value.”
